Space Wants More Space

CHICAGO Sept. 7 — After making an appropriation of $400,000 for the World's Fair and completing all plans for the greatest exhibit of any foreign nation the government of France may withdraw entirely from the Columbian exposition. Cablegrams were received several days ago announcing that unless certain conditions were granted to French exhibitors by Sept 10, France would suspend all preparations for the fair and vacate the space assigned to her exhibits and cancel the official acceptance of President Harrison's invitation to take part in the fair. The demand of the French government is for more space particularly in the manufactures building. If it is refused then France gives up all the room that has been tendered for her. Briefly stated France asks for a certain amount of space in each of the big buildings, the amount was what experts considered necessary to make a proper showing of the country's resources and products, rather than accept a smaller area and have an inferior show, France will make no show at all.

All cable goods in the case was sent to the all powerful council of administration to-day in the hope that a way would be found to accommodate France. The council took no action in the matter. Later in the afternoon the executive committee of the local board complicated the situation by refusing to put up a separate building for the department of liberal arts. Had this been done the entire educational display could have been moved from the manufacturers building and more space secured for France where it is most needed.

He leaves a wife and daughter. The deceased carried $250,000 insurance on his life and took out a policy for $20,000 worth of accident insurance before leaving Chicago in several old line companies. His friends refused to allow an autopsy to be held and the corpse will be shipped to Chicago to-day. The facts in the case were withheld from reporters until his relatives could be notified.

How Stevens Got a Nomination

Charles Beerman proprietor of the Kimball House and Markham House in Atlanta, has lived in the south since 1850. He was well acquainted with the celebrated Alexander H Stevens and tells this story of the confederate vice president.

Stevens wanted the nomination for congress in a Georgia district before the war, and had as his opponent a big bodied, big hearted, big lungs [illegible] himself on his herculean girth and bellowing voice. They came together at the hustings and the big man got the floor. He held his opponent up to ridicule and wound up his harangue with these words:

"Why, look at that man pointing to Stevens as he sat, a mere bundle of skin and bones, in an invalid's perambulating chair. Look at him! I could swallow him at one mouthful."

"You" piped Alex from the depths of his chair "and if he did he'd have more brains in his stomach than he's got in his head."

The crowd roared the big fellow retired in discomfiture and Alex got the nomination — Detroit Free Press.

A Great Truth from a Child

Children unconsciously come nearer great truth than they think. When Wagner was the owner of a cast iron bronze elephant, the one idol of his heart. In his old age and the effects of constant handling it had begun to shed its sawdust. Early one Sunday morning Wagner's mother found him on the floor of his room with a needle and long thread, quietly sewing up a rip in the hind leg of the animal. In rather a sharp tone of voice she said "Why, Wagner! I am ashamed of you sewing on Sunday! You might have waited for that until tomorrow, I should think."

While continuing to draw the thread through he looked up and in the most reverent manner and with the calmest voice remarked, "Mamma, didn't Christ heal on the Sabbath?" Truly, "out of the mouth of babes" shall come wisdom. — New York Tribune.

THE PEOPLE.

First convention of the People's Party in El Paso County

THE COUNTY TICKET NAMED

Clint Roudebush of Cripple Creek the Permanent Chairman M A Leddy Named for State Senator by the Senatorial Convention

The People's party was the only one organized in this county yesterday. The county and senatorial conventions were held and a full set of candidates nominated. It was a slow standing proposition and required heaps of talk for every [illegible] man is an orator and knows it. The convention was called to order in the court room and Judge Campbell kindly moved the court to other quarters.

John F Murray read the call at 11 o clock yesterday morning and asked that temporary officers be elected. Mr H J Dickinson of this city was [illegible] Mr Bollinger of Cripple Creek secretary with W G Reed of Divide assistant.

The convention resolved itself into a committee of the whole and passed upon the credentials. It was found that twenty four out of forty [illegible] of the county were represented the large delegations being 32 from the Cripple Creek district, 19 from this city 12 from Colorado City and 6 from Manitou. The report on credentials was accepted.

A committee on resolutions and order of business was appointed consisting of Bollinger of Cripple Creek Yarnell of Manitou Lanterman of Fremont and Trowbridge of Colorado City.

A committee on permanent organization consisting of H Nichols of Peyton O P Jackson of Monument and J W Moore of Colorado Springs was appointed after which an adjournment was taken until 2 o clock.

AFTERNOON SESSION

It was about 2 30 when the convention reconvened. The committee on permanent organization reported in favor of Clint Roudebush of Cripple Creek for permanent chairman, H A Buckley of Colorado City permanent secretary. They were unanimously elected, and Mr Roudebush in taking the chair declared his belief that this was an historic occasion. He had been in at the birth of the Republican party also and had always heretofore acted with it.

The committee on order of business reported a programme for the day.

Sam Yarnell of the committee on resolutions presented the following resolutions, which were adopted with much applause.

Resolved, By the People's party of El Paso county, state of Colorado, in convention assembled on this 7th day of September, 1892.

That we approve the action of the labor conference of Feb 22 at St Louis, and we endorse the platform of principles adopted at Omaha on the 4th of July last, and hereby pledge the standard bearers of the great convention of nation builders, our truest devotion and our most faithful support, and be it further

Resolved That the Populists of El Paso county in convention assembled realizing the [illegible] and unhealthful condition of all our local industries, and believing that the agricultural states of the great west and the cotton states of the south, are also suffering from like causes while the usual increase of the earth has not been withheld, are convinced that the general stagnation of all the wheels of production — this is due to a system of finance which is sweating the blood, paralyzing the energies, and damping the joys of life among our people everywhere.

We therefore, we declare for an increased supply of constitutional money issued under and the free and unlimited coinage of silver upon the ratio of 16 to 1. We demand this by the present congress and each succeeding congress until the two money metals of civilization are equally clothed with purchasing and debt-paying power by the government of the United States without foreign aid or interference.

Resolved, That we believe the proposition of secretary of the treasury, Foster, to refund the present outstanding indebtedness of the United States to the extent of $550,000,000.00 into bonds running for the term of fifty years, bearing a gold interest of 2 or 3 per cent payable in advance, is but another scheme to perpetuate the present false financial system of national banks, and as such, we denounce its author and advocate any political party or faction in this nation which gives only lip service to such financial theories. And be it further

Resolved, That we demand the payment at maturity of all the indebtedness of the United States in lawful money of the republic.

Resolved That we view with alarm the increasing conflicts between the managers of aggregated capital and their employees resulting already in the shedding of human blood in many states, and we demand that all private armed detectives be prohibited by law, and that the state provide an equitable mode of arbitration so that decisions must be final for the good of the state. We demand such legislation by the state as will be just to put the corporations and that will furnish like services at the same cost on the same division or line of steam railroads chartered and operated in this state, and this without rebate or favoritism in any particular.

We arraign the commissioners of this county for their dilatory action in constructing good county roads to Cripple Creek until a corporation was enabled to occupy a portion of one of the feasible routes and impose a tax that the people of El Paso county do not justify and will not long tolerate. "Equal rights to all, special privileges to none." The mode now enforced by the commissioners to keep county roads in repair is impracticable, vexatious to the public and useless and we recommend that sub-districts be created each to have appointed an overseer who shall have full authority to repair roads and bridges in an emergency.

We ask of the Ninth general assembly the passage of a general act under which counties of the population of El Paso can have appointed or elected two additional commissioners with a limitation of service.

We demand of the commissioners better road service, better bridge service and the relocation of county roads where dangerous grade crossings with steam railroads can be avoided.

We demand a full report of the acts, or deals and doings of the county commissioners to be printed in one of more county papers and not later than one week after they occur.

Resolved That we are opposed to the employment of convict labor wherever it comes into competition with free labor.

Resolved, That we demand of our representatives in the Ninth general assembly, railroad legislation that will result in adequate compensation to employees for accidents occurring upon railway lines through neglect or indifference of their management.

Resolved That the silver resolution of the late so-called Republican convention of this county is inconsistent with the Minneapolis platform, and is intended solely to mislead the voters into the support of a gold bug president.

Resolved, That we favor the reduction of the hours of labor as a means by which a more equal distribution of the wealth of the country can be accomplished, and also as a way for the people to acquire a more thorough education in all that goes to better their condition.

The next order of business was the nomination of candidates and county commissioner was first taken up. Mr. Hoover of Colorado Springs placed in nomination W B Pullen of Cripple Creek, and several persons seconded the nomination.

Delegate Moore of Colorado Springs named H C. Childs of Cedar Mountain Falls. Mr Childs, however, took the floor and in a speech of some length declined to be a candidate for any position. He thought that by accepting a candidacy he would weaken his influence in the east. Pullen's nomination was made by acclamation.

When the county judgeship was reached there was a little hesitation as number seemed to be shaken. Finally H. C. Childs name was called E. A. Smith of Fountain, and the nomination was made by acclamation.

[illegible] nominate John L. Lees for assessor, but Mr. Frank Finegan interrupted with an objection that the discussion of the Democratic and Republican parties was not pertinent. Mr Finegan addressed the presiding officer as Mr Chairman, and that gentleman told him that it was a convention of the people. Mr Lees was finally nominated by acclamation. Mr Lees is a prominent member of the carpenters union.

A delegate from Cripple Creek nominated H D Gorther of that place for representative, and he was put in by acclamation. Mr Gorther is a heavy property holder at the county.

Chairman Roudebush took the floor to nominate O J Jackson of Monument for the third place on the assembly ticket and he was also elected by acclamation. Mr Jackson is a well known resident of Monument.

The roll of the precinct was called and candidates were announced to the senatorial convention which was held in the evening.

Each precinct also elected a member of the central committee. This committee was instructed to fill all vacancies that may occur on the ticket and also among its own members.

O J Jackson moved that an executive committee of five be appointed to take charge of the campaign. It took a long time to get the straight out. J H Murray named H C Childs D W Robbins P M McAfee and Mr Trowbridge of Colorado City as suitable material for the committee. Mr Scott tried to get Dan Robbins fired off as he was not enough pure, or at least had not shown his faith by his good works. Some references having been made to money used in the campaign Mr Finegan fired up and declared that he cared nothing for men with money. Sam Yarnell put a few drops of oil on the troubled waters and the committee as named was selected.

A resolution was adopted that the executive committee inquire into the matter of running a daily paper during the campaign.

The business being pretty much concluded the candidates for the legislature were called out and made short addresses. Then at the suggestion of Mr Finegan a collection amounting to about $5 was taken up for James Fox an old soldier who is going to an old soldiers home.

A vote of thanks was given the officers and the convention adjourned with three cheers and a tiger.

OTHER CONVENTIONS —

SENATORIAL CONVENTION

A meeting of the central committee of the People's party was held at 7 o clock last night in the court house. B J Dickson was elected chairman and J W. Moore secretary. Nearly an hour was spent in doing nothing. As the party has no existence in the eyes of the law until a petition with fifty signers is placed in the hands of the county clerk, that important duty was turned over to Mr Childs.

The senatorial convention for the Third district met at 8 o'clock. There were no delegates from Douglas county, but Mr. Childs stated that he had been in that county recently and the voters had said they would be satisfied with whatever the delegates here would do. About twenty five of the El Paso delegates were present. Sam Yarnell was elected chairman and Mr. Childs secretary.

Under the head of nominations Wm Scott named H C Childs for senator. Mr. Childs again refused to be a candidate and concluded an address by offering the name of one that he knew to be a good Republican and a popular fellow. He mentioned M. A. Leddy of Manitou. Clint Roudebush rested the question as to Mr. Leddy's faith in the cause and a long discussion followed. Wm. Scott greatly opposed this nomination, said some hard things about the candidate and finding that he could not stay the tide left the hall in disgust.

Mr. Childs made a long speech explaining that these first in the people's movement should not try to monopolize it, and intimating that the Democracy were not far away. Upon motion of Dr. Lanterman, Mr Leddy was finally nominated by acclamation.

After a vote of thanks to Judge Campbell for the use of the court house and a small donation to Uncle Bailey the convention adjourned.

The Gloucester fishermen sail away full of hope and with a full bender. Arrived on the grounds they anchor in about forty or fifty fathoms, and set their trawls. These are long lines, anchored on the bottom, and extending out from the schooner many hundreds of yards. To these at intervals of a fathom (the distance varies for different fish) are attached shorter lines. The lines have to be attended in dories, each containing two men, who haul, bait and land the fish in the boat to be transferred to the schooner. Herein lie the danger and hardship, for the stormy days of the [illegible] and the short water pile up great and [illegible]. The cold is cruel and the work hard. Suddenly down comes a fog, not the soft mist of summer or autumn, but a thick, heavy bank, sucked through with the penetrating cold of the icebergs farther north. Horns are blown from the vessel, but every year many dories are lost.

One would think that common sense, if not law, would make each dory carry a number of water and pilot bread, but none does, and neither experience does not teach or the fishermen like such chances, for year after year comes the same old story of a lost dory and two men starved or died of thirst. When the fog lifts they are many miles from their schooner, and are carried by the swift tides they know not whither. Then come days of hunger and thirst, hands are frozen to the oars, madness haunts them, and then—death. Sometimes they make land or are picked up by a passing vessel, in which case they often return before their own schooner, but that great happiness is rare. Then their vessel, which so gayly sailed out past the light, comes home with her flag at half mast — R. Cleveland Coxe in Century.

Mazzini in his day saw clearly, and never failed to see that the man who thinks to solve the riddle of the time by simply solving its political or economic problem has got but a little way beneath the surface. The new synthesis which alone can satisfy must take account of every capacity of man and every hunger of his heart. The paid attorney for the defense and the paid preacher will not succeed by any poor mimicking of material things to blunt the shafts of the industrial reformer or blind the eyes of the poor man to the vision of freedom which comfort gives.

But if we were all comfortable tomorrow, all well fed and well tailored and easy payers of the income tax, and still without the love of justice in our hearts, without the love of beauty there, without aught eternal there and absolute without any light there upon the great mystery into which the most comfortable among us must hasten tomorrow, our perfect commissariat would be but a poor prison and we, when at the end of the week its new was worn off, of all men most miserable more miserable far than those under women among the lions of the coliseum, than those on Roger's island, than those poor persecuted ancestors, or than the Pilgrims. For these battled with of England, all with heaven in their hearts. New England Magazine.

Space Wants More Space

Chicago Sept. 7 — After making an appropriation of $400,000 for the World's Fair and completing all plans for the greatest exhibit of any foreign nation the government of France may withdraw entirely from the Columbian exposition. Cablegrams were received several days ago announcing that unless certain conditions were granted to French exhibitors by Sept 10, France would suspend all preparations for the fair and cancel the space assigned to her exhibits and cancel the official acceptance of President Harrison's invitation to take part in the fair. The demand of the French government is for more space particularly in the manufactures building. If it is refused then France gives up all the room that has been tendered for her. Briefly stated France asks for a certain amount of space in each of the big buildings, the amount was what experts considered necessary to make a proper showing of the country's resources and products, rather than accept a smaller area and have an inferior show, France will make no show at all.

All cable goods in the case was sent to the all powerful council of administration to-day in the hope that a way would be found to accommodate France. The council took no action in the matter. Later in the afternoon the executive committee of the local board complicated the situation by refusing to put up a separate building for the department of liberal arts. Had this been done the entire educational display could have been moved from the manufacturers building and more space secured for France where it is most needed.

He leaves a wife and daughter. The deceased carried $250,000 insurance on his life and took out a policy for $20,000 worth of accident insurance before leaving Chicago in several old line companies. His friends refused to allow an autopsy to be held and the corpse will be shipped to Chicago to-day. The facts in the case were withheld from reporters until his relatives could be notified.

How Stevens Got a Nomination

Charles Beerman proprietor of the Kimball House and Markham House in Atlanta, has lived in the south since 1850. He was well acquainted with the celebrated Alexander H Stevens and tells this story of the confederate vice president.

Stevens wanted the nomination for congress in a Georgia district before the war, and had as his opponent a big bodied, big headed, big lungs [illegible] himself on his herculean girth and bellowing voice. They came together at the hustings and the big man got the floor. He held his opponent up to ridicule and wound up his harangue with these words:

"Why, look at that man pointing to Stevens as he sat, a mere bundle of skin and bones, in an invalid's perambulating chair. Look at him! I could swallow him at one mouthful!"

"You" piped Alex from the depths of his chair "and if he did he'd have more brains in his stomach than he's got in his head."

The crowd roared the big fellow retired in discomfiture and Alex got the nomination — Detroit Free Press.

A Great Truth from a Child

Children unconsciously come nearer great truths than they think. Washington was the owner of a cocked hat and elephant, the one idol of his heart. Even old age and the effects of constant handling it had begun to shed its sawdust. Early one Sunday morning Washington's mother found him on the floor of his room with a needle and long thread, quietly sewing up a rip in the hind leg of the animal. In rather a sharp tone of voice she said "Why, Washington! I am ashamed of you sewing on Sunday! You might have waited for that until tomorrow, I should think."

While continuing to draw the thread through he looked up and in the most reverent manner and with the calmest voice remarked, "Mammy, didn't Christ heal on the Sabbath?" Truly, "out of the mouth of babes" shall come wisdom. — New York Tribune.

THE PEOPLE.

First convention of the People's Party in El Paso County

THE COUNTY TICKET NAMED

Clint Roudebush of Cripple Creek the Permanent Chairman M A Leddy Named for State Senator by the Senatorial Convention

The People's party held its first county convention last night in the city hall for the purpose of nominating a full set of candidates for county offices. It was a slow standing proposition and required heaps of talk for every [illegible] man is an orator and knows it. The convention was called to order in the court room and Judge Campbell kindly moved the court to other quarters.

John F Murray read the call at 11 o clock yesterday morning and asked that temporary officers be elected. Mr H J Dickinson of this city was [illegible] Mr Bollinger of Cripple Creek secretary with W G Reed of Denver assistant.

The convention resolved itself into a committee of the whole and passed upon the credentials. It was found that twenty-four out of forty-four districts of the county were represented the largest delegations being 32 from the Cripple Creek district, 9 from this city 12 from Colorado City and 6 from Manitou. The report on credentials was accepted.

A committee on resolutions and order of business was appointed consisting of Bollinger of Cripple Creek Yarnell of Manitou Lanterman of Fremont and Trowbridge of Colorado City.

A committee on permanent organization consisting of H Y Nichols of Peyton O P Jackson of Monument and J W Moore of Colorado Springs was appointed after which an adjournment was taken until 2 o clock.

AFTERNOON SESSION

It was about 2 30 when the convention reconvened. The committee on permanent organization reported in favor of Clint Roudebush of Cripple Creek for permanent chairman, H A Buckley of Colorado City permanent secretary. They were unanimously elected, and Mr Roudebush in taking the chair declared his belief that this was an historic occasion. He had been in at the birth of the Republican party also and had always heretofore acted with it.

The committee on order of business reported a programme for the day.

Sam Yarnell of the committee on resolutions presented the following resolutions, which were adopted with much applause.

Resolved, By the People's party of El Paso county, state of Colorado, in convention assembled on this 7th day of September, 1892.

That we approve the action of the labor conference of Feb 22 at St Louis, and we endorse the platform of principles adopted at Omaha on the 4th of July last, and hereby pledge the standard bearers of the great convention of nation builders, our truest devotion and our most faithful support, and be it further

Resolved That the Populists of El Paso county in convention assembled realizing the [illegible] and unhealthful condition of all our local industries, and believing that the agricultural states of the great west and the cotton states of the south, are also suffering from like causes while the usual increase of the earth has not been withheld, are convinced that the general stagnation of all the wheels of production — this is due to a system of finance which is sweating the blood, paralyzing the energies, and damping the joys of life among our people everywhere.

We therefore, we declare for an increased supply of constitutional money issued under and the free and unlimited coinage of silver upon the ratio of 16 to 1. We demand this by the present congress and each succeeding congress until the two money metals of civilization are equally clothed with purchasing and debt-paying power by the government of the United States without foreign aid or interference.

Resolved, That we believe the proposition of secretary of the treasury, Foster, to refund the present outstanding indebtedness of the United States to the extent of $550,000,000.00 into bonds running for the term of fifty years, bearing a gold interest of 2 or 3 per cent payable in advance, is but another scheme to perpetuate the present false financial system of national banks, and as such, we denounce its author and advocate any political party or faction in this nation which gives only lip service to such financial theories. And be it further

Resolved, That we demand the payment at maturity of all the indebtedness of the United States in lawful money of the republic.

Resolved That we view with alarm the increasing conflicts between the managers of aggregated capital and their employees resulting already in the shedding of human blood in many states, and we demand that all private armed detectives be prohibited by law, and that the state provide an equitable mode of arbitration — a decision of which must be final for the good of the state. We demand such legislation by the state as will be just to put the corporations and that will furnish like services at the same cost on the same division or line of steam railroads chartered and operated in this state, and this without rebate or favoritism in any particular.

We arraign the commissioners of this county for their dilatory action in constructing good county roads to Cripple Creek until a corporation was enabled to occupy a portion of one of the feasible routes and impose a tax that the people of El Paso county do not justify and will not long tolerate. "Equal rights to all, special privileges to none." The mode now enforced by the commissioners to keep county roads in repair is impracticable, vexatious to the public and useless and we recommend that sub-districts be created each to have appointed an overseer who shall have full authority to repair roads and bridges in an emergency.

We ask of the Ninth general assembly the passage of a general act under which counties of the population of El Paso can have appointed or elected two additional commissioners with a limitation of service.

We demand of the commissioners better road service, better bridge service and the relocation of county roads where dangerous grade crossings with steam railroads can be avoided.

We demand a full report of the acts, or deals and doings of the county commissioners to be published in one of more county papers and not later than one week after they occur.

Resolved That we are opposed to the employment of convict labor wherever it comes into competition with free labor.

Resolved, That we demand of our representatives in the Ninth general assembly, railroad legislation that will result in adequate compensation to employees for accidents occurring upon railway lines through neglect or indifference of their management.

Resolved That the silver resolution of the late so-called Republican convention of this county is inconsistent with the Minneapolis platform, and is intended solely to mislead the voters into the support of a gold bug president.

Resolved, That we favor the reduction of the hours of labor as a means by which a more equal distribution of the wealth of the country can be accomplished, and also as a way for the people to acquire a more thorough education in all that goes to better their condition.

The next order of business was the nomination of candidates and county commissioner was first taken up. Mr. Hoover of Colorado Springs placed in nomination W B Pullen of Cripple Creek, and several persons seconded the nomination.

Delegate Moore of Colorado Springs named H C. Childs of Cedar Mountain Falls. Mr Childs, however, took the floor and in a speech of some length declined to be a candidate for any position. He thought that by accepting a candidacy he would weaken his influence in the east. Pullen's nomination was made by acclamation.

When the county judgeship was reached there was a little hesitation as number seemed to be scarce. Finally H. C. Childs name was called E. A. Smith of Fountain, and the nomination was made by acclamation.

[illegible] Yarnell [illegible] nominated John L. Lees for assessor, but Mr. Frank Finegan interrupted with an objection that the discussion of the Democratic and Republican parties was not pertinent. Mr Finegan addressed the presiding officer as Mr Chairman, and that gentleman told him that it was a convention of the people. Mr Finegan was finally nominated by acclamation. Mr Lees is a prominent member of the Carpenters union.

A delegate from Cripple Creek nominated H D Gorther of that place for representative, and he was put in by acclamation. Mr Gorther is a heavy property holder at the county.

Chairman Roudebush took the floor to nominate O J Jackson of Monument for the third place on the assembly ticket and he was also elected by acclamation. Mr Jackson is a well known resident of Monument.

The roll of the precinct was called and candidates were announced to the central committee for the ensuing year.

Each precinct also elected a member of the central committee. This committee was instructed to fill all vacancies that may occur on the ticket and also among its own members.

O J Jackson moved that an executive committee of five be appointed to take charge of the campaign. It took a long time to get the straight end out. J H Murray named H C Childs D W Robbins P M McAfee and Mr Trowbridge of Colorado City as suitable material for the committee. Mr Scott tried to get Dan Robbins fired off as he was not a monopolist, or at least had not shown his faith by his good works. Some references having been made to money used in the campaign Mr Finegan fired up and declared that he cared nothing for men with money. Sam Yarnell put a few drops of oil on the troubled waters and the committee as named was selected.

A resolution was adopted that the executive committee inquire into the matter of running a daily paper during the campaign.

The business being pretty much concluded the candidates for the legislature were called out and made short addresses. Then at the suggestion of Mr Finegan a collection amounting to about $5 was taken up for James Fox an old soldier who is going to an old soldiers home.

A vote of thanks was given the officers and the convention adjourned with three cheers and a tiger.

OTHER CONVENTIONS —

SENATORIAL CONVENTION

A meeting of the central committee of the People's party was held at 7 o clock last night in the court house. B J Dickson was elected chairman and J W. Moore secretary. Nearly an hour was spent in doing nothing. As the party has no existence in the eyes of the law until a petition with fifty electors is placed in the hands of the county clerk, that important duty was turned over to Mr Childs.

The senatorial convention for the Third district met at 8 o'clock. There were no delegates from Douglas county, but Mr. Childs stated that he had been in that county recently and the voters had said they would be satisfied with whatever the delegates here would do. About twenty five of the El Paso delegates were present. Sam Yarnell was elected chairman and Mr. Childs secretary.

Under the head of nominations Wm Scott named H C Childs for senator. Mr. Childs again refused to be a candidate and concluded an address by offering the name of one that he knew to be a good Democrat and a popular fellow. He mentioned M. A. Leddy of Manitou. Clint Roudebush read the question as to Mr. Leddy's faith in the cause and a long discussion followed. Wm. Scott mildly opposed this nomination, said some hard things about the candidate and finding that he could not stay the tide left the hall in disgust.

Mr. Childs made a long speech explaining that these first in the people's movement should not try to monopolize it, and intimating that the Democracy were not far away. Upon motion of Dr. Lanterman, Mr Leddy was finally nominated by acclamation.

After a vote of thanks to Judge Campbell for the use of the court house and a small donation to Uncle Bailey the convention adjourned.

The Gloucester fishermen sail away full of hope and with a full bender. Arrived on the grounds they anchor in about forty or fifty fathoms, and set their trawls. These are long lines, anchored on the bottom, and extending out from the schooner many hundreds of yards. To these at intervals of a fathom (the distance varies for different fish) are attached shorter lines. The lines have to be attended in dories, each containing two men, who haul, bait and land the fish in the boat to be transferred to the schooner. Herein lie the danger and hardship, for the stormy seas of the banks and the short water pile up great and big. The cold is cruel and the work hard. Suddenly down comes a fog, not the soft mist of summer or autumn, but a thick, heavy bank, soaked through with the penetrating cold of the icebergs farther north. Horns are blown from the vessel, but every year many dories are lost.

One would think that common sense, if not law, would make each dory carry a number of water and pilot bread, but none does, and neither experience does not teach or the fishermen like such chances, for year after year comes the same old story of a lost dory and two men starved or died of thirst. When the fog lifts they are many miles from their schooner, and are carried by the swift tides they know not whither. Then come days of hunger and thirst, hands are frozen to the oars, madness haunts them, and then—death. Sometimes they make land or are picked up by a passing vessel, in which case they often return before their own schooner, but that great happiness is rare. Then their vessel, which so gayly sailed out past the light, comes home with her flag at half mast.—R. Cleveland Coxe in Century.

Mazzini in his day saw clearly, and never failed to see that the man who thinks to solve the riddle of the time by simply solving its political or economic problem has got but a little way beneath the surface. The new synthesis which alone can satisfy must take account of every capacity of man and every hunger of his heart. The paid attorney for the defense, and the paid preacher will not succeed by any poor minimizing of material things to blunt the shafts of the industrial reformer or blind the eyes of the poor man to the vision of freedom which comfort gives.

But if we were all comfortable tomorrow, all well fed and well tailored and easy payers of the income tax, and still without the love of justice in our hearts, without the love of beauty there, without aught eternal there and absolute without any light there upon the great mystery into which the most comfortable among us must hasten tomorrow, our perfect commissariat would be but a poor prison and we, when at the end of the week its new was worn off, of all men most miserable more miserable far than those under women among the lions of the coliseum, than those on Roger's island, than those poor persecuted ancestors, or than the Pilgrims. For these believed out of England, all with heaven in their hearts. New England Magazine.

JOHN G. WHITTIER

In the death of Whittier the English speaking peoples are again called upon to mourn the loss of a poet of the first rank. On this occasion it is proper to reverse all that was said at the death of Longfellow, of Bryant and of Lowell. It is none the less true now than then that there existed in the early part of the first century of American independence a group of poets and sayists of remarkable merit. It is even more true now than then that the number remaining of these is few and these few are old men, men whose reputation is fixed by what they have already done. It is still true that their ranks do not seem to be among the younger men of this generation any one of merit equal to those who attained their literary majority before the great war.

John Greenleaf Whittier was born at Haverhill, Ma., Dec. 17, 1807 of Quaker parentage and received a common school education; spent his boyhood on a farm, learning also the trade of a shoemaker. When 18 years of age he began to write poems for the Haverhill Gazette, spent two years thereafter at the Haverhill Academy and became in 1828 editor of the American Manufacturer, a newspaper at Boston, succeeded George D. Prentice (who in 1830 went south to write the life of Henry Clay) as editor of the New England Weekly Review, which had been founded by J. G. C. Brainard at Hartford, Conn., returned to Haverhill, 1831, and engaged in farming for several years, edited, however, the Gazette 1832 and 1836 and was a member of the legislature 1835-36. He became secretary of the American Anti Slavery society at Philadelphia 1836 and edited The Pennsylvania Freeman 1838-39, his office being wrecked and burned by a mob, settled at Amesbury, Mass., 1840 and became corresponding editor of The National Era, an anti-slavery paper published at Washington D. C., by Dr. Gamaliel Bailey, 1847, contributed to its columns many of his anti slavery and other favorite lyrics, and has lived in literary retirement of Quaker simplicity for many years, publishing frequent volumes of poetry, which have procured him a prominent place among American authors and the love and admiration of his countrymen. He was never married. In 1876 he took up his residence at Peabody (formerly South Danvers), Mass. Several collective editions of his poems have appeared, the best being the "Centennial edition" of 1876.

The nomination of Hon. H. H. Eddy by the Republican convention of the 33rd congressional district held in this city day before yesterday, was but a recognition of his distinguished ability and fidelity in less elevated posts of public service, and meets hearty approval by the Republicans of the district. With natural points of no common order, familiarity with the forms of legislation quickness of apprehension a ripe intelligence, affable address and a forcible manner of presenting his views and those of his constituents in the controversies and clashing interests of the representatives of the whole country in congress assembled he will if elected, take his place, and no ignoble one in the councils of that great body and maintain it with credit and dignity honorable to himself and to his constituents. We bespeak for him public confidence and a hearty support.

The enthusiasm and the unity noticeable in both the congressional conventions of the Republican party of this state has already gone far to dispel the feeling of alarm which had been caused by the noise of the People's party. There has always been good reason to believe that the People's party is composed of those who have in the past voted against the Republican party and a few who have left the Republican party because they have for good reason been denied advancement in the councils of the party and political preferment. It is however only on the reassembling of the Republican cohorts that we realize how solid are the ranks and how few are the missing names at roll call. The Republican party faces its old foes under a new face with undiminished confidence and with the familiar faces all in line.

The failure of Hon. Hosea Townsend to receive a renomination for congress at the Democratic convention was due to a want of appreciation by his constituents of his faithful service and devotion to their interests in his two terms in the national legislature. The people of the district feel that he has served them ably and well and cherish the utmost respect for him as a man of honor and ability, and [illegible] tive faithful friend and will not forget. It is to be expected in this young, progressive state public men of talent and capacity for public service [illegible] tion in office will be the rule, and a long term of public service is not likely to be conceded to any, however worthy and deserving.

On the day before the meeting of the state Republican convention there appears to be no reason why Secretary H. J. Eaton should not receive a renomination without opposition. The first element of his strength lies in the solid support of the large delegation from El Paso county. This county has no other candidate for state office and has prominence in the party and her unwavering and generous support of Republican principles certainly entitles her to this recognition. Furthermore Secretary Eaton gains strength from his wide acquaintance. He is stronger now than he was two years ago because more people know him. His efficiency in office is unsurpassed and his integrity unquestioned. The state cannot afford to dispense with the services of such a man.

From the applications already on file it is estimated that more than 100,000 men will participate in the great civic parade at the time of the dedication of the World's Fair buildings in October.

Plans for the World's Fair passenger station at Jackson park call for a main station 150x300 feet, with an annexed train shed 100x672 feet. Provision is made for loading and unloading thirty way trains at one time on covered tracks.

Applications for space in the electricity building at the World's Fair aggregate 388,000 square feet, while only 185,000 feet are available. Foreign nations have already been assigned 68,000 feet, and many of them are urgently asking for more.

On each side of the MacMonnies mammoth memorial fountain in front of the administration building at the World's Fair will be a huge electrical fountain which will throw a stream 150 feet high, brilliantly illuminated by variously colored electric lights.

Prof. Elisha Gray, the celebrated electrician, has returned from an extensive European tour taken in the interest of the electrical congress which will be held in Chicago in connection with the World's Fair. He secured the promise of 200 electricians to attend the congress.

Governor Fifer of Illinois has detailed Col. Charles P. Bryan of his staff to assist in receiving officers of state and foreign troops at the time of the dedication of the World's Fair buildings in October. The appointment was made at the request of the joint committee on dedicatory ceremonies.

Thirty two silk manufactories at Lyons, France, have decided to make exhibits at the World's Fair, and each one is striving to make the finest showing. Lyons is the greatest silk manufacturing center in the world, and made a magnificent display at the Paris exposition. It is reported however, that it will do still better at Chicago.

Col. de Palitschek the Austrian commissioner general, writes that the world-famed glassmakers of Austria especially of Bohemia, and the china manufactures of Carlsbad and the surrounding neighborhood have agreed upon making a grand display of their industries at the exposition. The manufacturers of stained glass in Tyrol will join in the exhibit.

The French commission will send to the World's Fair to superintend the horticultural and floricultural work in the French section M. Le Fevre, the superintendent and head gardener for the city of Paris who has charge of the gardens in the Bois de Boulogne. M. Le Fevre was in charge of the gardens around the Trocadero at the Paris exposition in 1889.

A company has been incorporated with $150,000 capital stock for the purpose of erecting near the World's Fair a $75,000 club house which shall be maintained during the fair as headquarters for wheelmen from all parts of the world. Thereafter the building will become a central club house for the League of American Wheelmen—the project approved by members of the national association and by the council of the League.

Among the exhibits to be made at the World's Fair by foreign nations the Persian will but less and that of Persia one of the most interesting. It will include rare specimens of art industry. Work in richly wrought fabrics will constitute an attractive feature as will exquisitely the embroideries and elaborately worked gold and silver jewelry, rare [illegible] carpets, embroidered hangings. There will also be found in the Persian exhibit a department for manufactures such as [illegible] richly wrought armor, tiles and tiles, work, mosaics, objects of art, musical instruments, wearing apparel, etc. Altogether the Persian exhibit is promised to be characteristic and exceptionally unique a collection of objects of extraordinary beauty.

INTERESTING INCIDENTS RELATED BY MAJOR A. R. CALHOUN

(Copyright 1892 by American Press Association.)

The reign of Anna, empress of Russia, was distinguished for many extravagances and shortsighted acts that were either brilliant or absurd. The empress of Russia ascended the throne in 1730 and died in 1740. She was the niece of Peter the Great. She married without any direct or indirect part to a woman in the service of the empress.

A certain [illegible] lived happily of her [illegible] and [illegible] to provide for the future. Such a [illegible] took place in a certain [illegible] in the banks of the Neva in a rude [illegible] place. The [illegible] appointments of the furniture and [illegible] were all of the [illegible] and were [illegible] with [illegible] letters.

It was the custom at this court to have the most [illegible] and [illegible] at court.

Hedlinger, poet of St. Petersburg, at this time was a [illegible] man who with a high sense of honor refused to degrade his muse to all things with such offensive.

For this contumely the poet was stripped and given a hundred lashes on the bare back. His mind left him during the torture but when he revived he was thrown into one of the St. Petersburg dungeons.

On the morning of the 6th of February, 1740 the entire population of St. Petersburg awoke early in order to witness the festivities of the fool's marriage. After the ceremonies were over, the poet who had in some way escaped from the jail appeared before the empress and her nobles, his face haggard and his garments covered with blood and he threw himself at Anna's feet. Wollinski, the favorite of the empress had the man removed to the dungeon again with orders to have the lashes doubled.

The empress was a nervous woman in ill health and it was the duty of Wollinski to devise new amusements for her. It was this desire that induced him to arrange the fool's marriage.

Among the men in St. Petersburg, who had a heart and who felt the outrage of the brutal conduct of Wollinski was Count Biren.

After the wedding Biren went to the jail where he found the poet prostrated from his brutal torture with one of his eyes gone it having been cut out by the cruel lash.

Biren was a man of quiet manner and determined purpose.

Like all favorites Wollinski had many enemies in the capital and these Biren determined to combine so as to bring about the overthrow of the man whom he regarded as a hypocrite and a monster.

THE POET'S REVENGE.

It would seem that Wollinski through his spies was made aware of the designs of Biren and determined to oppose them by a counterplot.

Biren was a great favorite with the empress as he was with the people of the whole empire. He fully appreciated the contest on which he had entered and which had its origin in the fool's wedding, and he determined to destroy his rival or force him to expiate the outrage on the poet with his own blood.

He brought his charges fortified with incontrovertible evidence and presented them to the empress in her apartment.

Anna glanced over the papers saw their import and then asked:

"Is it not possible Duke Biren for you and Prince Wollinski to become friends again?"

To which Biren replied:

"I have not entered on this struggle unadvisedly. This is a large world but it is all too small to hold Duke Biren and Prince Wollinski. Either he or I must fall."

This sealed the fate of Wollinski. From that minute he was a doomed man.

After a week's delay the empress again sent for Wollinski and implored him to withdraw the charges. He sank on his knees at the foot of the throne, kissed her hand and replied:

"Your majesty it is no longer a question between Wollinski and Biren. It is a fight between right and wrong. All possible mischief you are continually longer to conceal him in the shadow of your throne and that too will become insecure. Decide against me in his favor and in new Peter burg I report that Wollinski or Biren must fall."

We held that she was to her favorite the empress [illegible] married to her throne. Against her will it may be yet in obedience to the solicitation of her minister she consented Wollinski to be placed under arrest.

A commission was appointed to examine the charges against him. These had been prepared well such care that the commission thought many of them were false, but Wollinski was found guilty of high treason and imprisoned.

As the doomed man endured the accusations he was put to the rack and on his bare back 100 lashes from the knout were laid exactly such had ordered in the case of the poet old poet.

Biren was not naturally a cruel man and now that his rival was at his feet he would be [illegible] if possible the terrible sentence of the court. It was that Wollinski should be tongue tied out of the [illegible] conspiracy which he had [illegible] organized and that he should be [illegible] and that [illegible] should be banished to Siberia and [illegible] be confiscated.

The empress hesitated to sign the death warrant but again Biren repeated his terrible [illegible] Wollinski [illegible] eyes [illegible] accede to the demands. She [illegible] the [illegible] of the death sentence.

On the morning of June 14 Prince Wollinski [illegible] of his high [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] [illegible] followed.

The Good Templars will serve supper at their hall this evening for 25 cents. All are invited.

In the tennis tournament yesterday Miles Bland beat W. A. Otis in gentlemen's singles 6-2 and 6-0.

E. K. Criley & Co., proprietors of the Ramona at Cascade, announce that they will keep the hotel open until Sept. 20th.

There will be a meeting of the Union Chapel society at 7:30 to-night at the chapel in West Colorado Springs.

All members of John A. Logan Military company are requested to appear at their hall at 7:30 promptly this evening for drill.

Mr. G. Herbert Brown, the well known newspaper correspondent, is at Sour Lake, Tex., where he is taking the mud baths.

There will be a very interesting meeting of Camp 25, P. O. S. of A., to-morrow evening at their hall. Every member should be present.

The Democratic primaries to select delegates to the county convention, which meets on Saturday, will be held at court house hall this evening.

The session of the district court yesterday was spent in disposing of motions in various civil cases. To-day the criminal docket will be called and cases set for trial.

For the Democratic state convention at Pueblo the D. & R. G. will sell tickets at one fare for the round trip. Tickets on sale Sept. 10th, and 11th; good to return until Sept. 15.

Mrs. E. W. Bacon and her daughter Miss Alice Bacon have returned from their eastern trip. Mrs. Bacon will again have charge of Montgomery hall at the college this year.

At the regular meeting of the G. A. R. Tuesday evening the post voted to take part in the national school exercises on Oct. 21st, and have so notified Superintendent Pattison.

Rev. C. N. Fitch, state superintendent for Congregational Sunday schools, and agent for the Publishing Society of Boston, has leased the Ellison house on North Tejon street and moved in on the 3d inst.

Mr. H. W. Hallet, formerly a prominent citizen of this city and now president of the board of county commissioners of Garfield county and Republican candidate for assemblyman, was in the city yesterday.

All the rooms at the Colorado college dormitories have been engaged for the coming year and students are returning on every train. The attendance this fall will probably exceed that of any previous year.

The waiters at the Casino were paid off on Monday and quietly slipped off to the east. From this a rumor has started that the cafe has been closed. Meals are served at the Casino as usual, as Manager Headman is not a person to be put out by a little thing like that.

Mr. H. F. Cook of St. Louis yesterday purchased the silver-tip bear skin of Mr. E. M. Kirchner which has attracted so much attention. It will be exhibited at the World's Fair. Mr. Kirchner says it is the finest and the longest skin of the kind he has seen. He has now a fine cinnamon bear skin which is even larger.

Colorado Springs is now in a very fair sanitary condition. The police department has recently been busy ordering the removal of all piles of rubbish or offal that might prove a source of infection; the water supply is as nearly free from pollution as it is possible to make it. The sewer outlet has caused some complaint but this trouble will be remedied at once.

There was another large crowd at the Catholic fair last evening, and a good time for all. Friday evening there will be a prize dance in which the lady judged the best dancer will be given a handsome prize. The voting contests now stand as follows: Most popular hospital, Glockner home, 5; Printers' home, 10; Sisters' hospital, 3; Bellevue, 15. Young ladies contest, Nellie Downs, 28; Gracie Copeland, 19. Children's contest, P. Baur, 25; Marie Bradford, 16.

The interest in Watermelon Day grows apace. Present indications are that the attendance will be the largest on record for this annual occasion, or even at any gathering during the present year in Colorado, except the Knights Templar conclave. The Santa Fe special train leaves at 7 a. m. this morning and will carry a large number from Manitou, Colorado City and this city. A special unique badge has been prepared for the delegation from Colorado Springs.

A fine oil painting representing a scene in the Green river country has been painted by Mr. Charles Craig and put on exhibition in the office of the company at 112 Pike's Peak avenue. The picture was painted for the Green River Navigation and Improvement company, which has been organized for the purpose of settling about 18,000 acres of fine bottom land along the Green, Grand and Colorado rivers in Utah. Persons desiring to get free homes can now get full information regarding the plans of the company at its office with Graham & Lentz.

The fall season at the opera house will begin Tuesday, Sept. 20th. The opening attraction will be "The Berger Dainty Concert company." It is not often that we find in any organization of entertainers so much artistic ability as that to be found in the Anna Teresa Berger and Laura Dainty company. In this company are Miss Anna Berger, who has charmed the whole world with her cornet solos; Laura Dainty, the most gifted of public readers, and Leon Marx, the phenomenal boy violinist. Others in the company are Miss Kate Eloise Donohue, the contralto, and Miss Evelyn Stoddard, the pianiste. This organization is meeting with the success it so richly merits wherever it appears.

I. O. O. F. Excursion.

For I. O. O. F. excursion to Portland the D. & R. G. will sell tickets at one fare for the round trip. Tickets on sale September 10th to 15. Good to return until November 15th.—Ticket office 16 North Tejon street.

SHE RECOILED, BUT DIDN'T KICK.

Two tall, graceful girls strolled slowly along the beach earnestly conversing. They were conspicuous in the throng, and many an admiring glance was turned toward them as they sauntered to and fro. A cloudless sky was reflected in calm waters below, while scarcely a breath of air was stirring.

The girl in the pure white blazer was long most of the talking.

"It is all very well," she was saying, "to insist that you would die for the man you love, but the sacrifice is quite another thing."

The girl with the blue yachting cap shrugged her shoulders.

"You speak," she observed, "like one who had made the sacrifice."

"I have the right so to speak."

Affecting recollections poured tumultuously over the soul of the girl in the white blazer. Her lips trembled and the superb eyes bent upon the sand of the beach glistened with the dew of gathering tears.

"Indeed," she sarcastically retorted, "how very interesting! And how does it feel to actually die for the man you love?"

Reproachfully the girl in the white blazer directed her gaze upon the girl with the blue yachting cap.

"You shall not make light of it."

"Forgive me."

For a time they walked in silence. Both were deeply affected, the one filled with remembrances of the past; the other her resentment gone, with womanly sympathy.

"Tell me about it, Ethel."

The girl in the blue yatching cap was tenderly persuasive.

"It was worse than dying for him, Clara."

With a quick movement the tears were dashed from the superb eyes, and the girl with the white blazer faced her companion.

"It was at Easter, Clara. You remember the dear, bright fellow I was engaged to then. One evening but a short while before he said he did not believe I bore him the deep love I should. I challenged him to name a sacrifice I would not make for his sake. With an insight into feminine character which was Mephistophelian in its subtlety, he dared me to do that which causes every woman's heart to recoil with horror. But I did it."

They had paused in their walk, and were looking at each other fixedly.

"Ethel!"

"Yes, Clara, I did it. I went to church that Easter morning, sat in the very front seat, and I never looked around during the service."

The girl in the blue yachting cap drew a deep, tremulous breath.

"Ethel!"

"Yes, Clara."

"You are a sublime heroine. Can you forget my hasty words?"

"I can, Clara."

Did the Ancient Jews Play Ball?

Herod the Great was the first Jewish king who imported into his realm Roman modes of "society life." His theaters and arenas, after the Roman style, were not to the national taste in amusements, despite the fact that the former were, so to say, silently patronized by the Talmud in the saying, "Let us be grateful to the Romans for their establishment of theaters, as they keep the public from mischief, which Satan finds for idle folks." The arenas were not patronized on a scale as the human performances given there. The favorite Jewish national game at that time was Gie badur, or ball.

Whether it was played as a sort of lawn tennis or as national baseball is not recorded. That the game was not allowed by some rabbis to be played on the Sabbath is a proof that the game required skill and labor. That the game was patronized by the Talmud we infer from its not being included among those against which the Talmud opened a crusade, condemning them as "gambling games."—Boston Transcript.

The Thunderer's Suicide Day.

A young Philadelphian, who has been employed on the staff of more than one newspaper in this city, went abroad and secured a position as reporter for the London Times. When he was deemed sufficiently broken in he was sent out one evening to write up the story of a rich and beautiful girl who had taken chloroform because her lover failed to appear at the altar when due.

The young Philadelphian raced nimbly about gathering various particulars and [illegible] back to the office in a cab, affixing his copy into shape. Not far [illegible] midnight he sped up the stairs to [illegible] local room and turned in his copy with apologies for his unavoidable lateness.

"It doesn't matter," said one of the editors calmly; "this is Monday, you know, and we print suicides only on Saturdays."—Philadelphia Press.

Unconscious Comment.

Mr. C. was particularly deliberate in the matter of invoking the divine blessing upon the family meals, and when the repast was unusually good this was a trying ordeal to the three young sons. On one occasion there were strangers—and chicken—at dinner, and this function was longer than ever. At its conclusion the three-year-old son drew a long breath, and fervently but audibly remarked, "That's a good job done."—New York Tribune.

Always Right There.

The man who says the weather is too hot to dance at the summer hotel compromises by wearing a polka dot necktie and standing in the ballroom window to keep a draught blowing from the dancers.—New Orleans Picayune.

Coins of Value.

"Some pennies are worth a good deal of money," said a dealer in coins. "If you come across an old collection of copper cents in an out of the way corner you will do well to examine their dates carefully. From the point of view of the numismatist their value depends largely upon their condition. For example, for a cent of 1799 in a fair state of preservation we pay five dollars, but for a specimen of the same issue in first rate condition we would pay from ten to twenty-five dollars, and for a perfect cent of 1799 that is as bright and sharp as the day it was coined—we will pay $100.

"Do not attempt to clean coins that are in fine condition. They should be held only by the edges in handling them, and ought to be kept wrapped carefully in chamois skin or soft tissue paper or laid on velvet. Gold and silver coins may be rinsed, not washed, in hot water and soap. Copper coins should be placed in sweet oil only to remove grease and dirt. Acids and scouring will ruin any coin of worth. Age does not necessarily make value in coins. The old Spanish silver pieces current in this country from 1700 to 1800 are worth no more than their face, and the same is the case with cents of 1798, 1802 and 1803, as well as with half dollars of dates between 1805 and 1835."—Washington Star.

When Money Was Plenty.

There is a class of men, particularly in the western country, who get into the habit of stretching the truth of incidents which occurred in their pioneer days until they become to believe them as facts. One of the most scientific of these is Jim Hawthorne, whose home now is near White Pine, Gunnison county. Here is one of Jim's stories: "Me and my partner," he observed, "made more money in them days than we knew what to do with. For instance, when we had that big government contract for wood we was rollin' in money. Money was common—more than chipmunks, and it wasn't much good to us neither, 'cause we didn't have no stores to spend it at. That contract was for 50,000 cords of wood. We got $175 a cord, and we made money very easy." "What was the government doing with so much wood?" "Well, I don't know. Some of it was used by the Indians. The government just had it left around handy for clambakes." "Clambakes?" "Why, cert; clambakes were very common in them days on the Platte." "Did you deliver the full contract?" "No. We kind of let up after we had delivered 40,000 cords. We didn't want to bust the government. I just tell this to show you how plenty money was in them days."—Colorado Sun.

The Growth of the City!

The city is growing in every direction, new streets are cut through open spaces, new clusters of houses are being joined onto the city in addition. Land that was once in the country is now in the city, and the suburban will soon be right in the town. There is money to be made in growth. Big money has been made out of it in the past. Outlying acres to increase in value, and when it changes from fields to lots it will make snug fortunes for the fortunate holders.

We have a tract of fine land in the northern part of the city that we sell at $1000 per acre.

Five acres fine land, north, at $500 per acre.

A tract of good land on the east side in a year will make a snug fortune.

An interest in a large tract for sale at from $20 per acre.
